The prized possession you value above all others… There are a lot of things I like and Gregory Peck in To Kill A Mockingbird.

Two Guvnors moves into London’s Theatre Royal Haymarket.

And Bruce Springsteen’s new album Wrecking Ball is out Monday.

We ask a celebrity a set of devilishly probing questions – and only accept THE definitive answer. This week it’s Today host John Humphrys.

The piece of wisdom you would pass on to a child... Learn from your mistakes and try not to repeat them.

The unfulfilled ambition that continued to haunt you...

The unfulfilled ambition that continued to haunt you...

The unhappiest moment you will cherish... My brother Rob died three years ago from lung cancer when he was only 56. I miss him intensely, but I can’t say I know his world. Death is inevitable.

The way you want to be remembered... I’d like to thank Daily Mail readers for helping me launch The Kitchen Table Charities Trust in 2006. It continues to support thousands of the poorest people in sub-Saharan Africa. www.kitchenstablecharities.org

As told to Rob McGibbon.

The misapprehension about yourself you wish you could erase... That I’m in some way a brutal, aggressive Rottweiler of an interviewer. I’m not. I’m sweet, gentle, kind and understanding.

The event that altered the course of your life and character... A life is influenced by millions of events and they all in some way shape your character.

The crime you would commit knowing you could get away with it... I’d love it. All children should read it before they are 13.

The temptation you wish you could resist... Crisps – I’m a sucker for them. I used to eat two bags a day but I’ve cut back to one a week.

The priority activity if you were the prime minister... "When you’re a politician puts his hands up and says, ‘It’s a fair cop. You’ve got me bang to rights. I’ll go quietly.’ The only worry that underpins your life... There’s still time to get it right.

The order of service at your funeral... There will be no funeral. Just bury me in a cardboard box near my home in Wales. If my children want readings or music, that’s entirely up to them.

The happiest moment you will cherish... The birth of a child. I wasn’t allowed in the theatre when my first two children arrived by Caesarean section, but I was there for Owen’s birth. It was a wonderful moment.

The saddest time that shook your world... My brother Rob died three years ago from lung cancer when he was only 56. I miss him intensely, but I can’t say I know his world. Death is inevitable.
